Every inch of this beautifully restored 3-bedroom, 2-bath Kingston home has been thoughtfully reimagined to honor its historic character while introducing all-new modern comfort. The original clapboard siding has been meticulously restored, preserving the texture and charm that define Kingston's architectural heritage. Inside, new lighting, finishes, and custom details bring warmth and refinement to every space—from the open living area to the fully redesigned kitchen with all-new cabinetry, countertops, and appliances. In addition to three bedrooms and a full bath on the second floor, the main level offers a versatile flex suite with its own full bath—perfect as a primary bedroom, guest space, den, or home office. Each room features cohesive design elements, from refined tilework and fresh fixtures to the abundant natural light that enhances the home's seamless flow. Outdoors, a newly installed bluestone patio invites easy entertaining or quiet relaxation, framed by hand-rebuilt stone walls that celebrate the home's craftsmanship and setting. Nestled in the heart of Kingston, this property enjoys quick access to the city's vibrant cultural life. Just minutes from the Uptown Stockade District, you'll find galleries, cafés, and locally owned shops lining historic streets. The Rondout waterfront is equally close—home to marinas, riverfront dining, and sunset views over the Hudson. With its blend of restored authenticity and modern design, 139 Highland Avenue captures the spirit of Kingston's renewal and the easy rhythm of Hudson Valley living.
