Fully occupied and rarely available at this scale, 2 Striebel Road offers nine residential units in the center of Woodstock -- one of the Hudson Valley's most supply-constrained and consistently demanded rental markets. Set on just over an acre with off-street parking, the property sits moments from the center of town, where restaurants, galleries, music venues, cafés, and shops continue to anchor Woodstock's year-round appeal. The existing configuration provides approximately 6,080 square feet of income-producing residential space with stable occupancy and durable tenant demand. In a market largely defined by single-family housing, small cottages, and limited multifamily inventory, the scale alone makes this property increasingly difficult to replicate. R-3 zoning further strengthens the long-term positioning of the asset while preserving flexibility for future ownership strategies. Woodstock continues to attract a broad mix of full-time residents, creatives, weekenders, and remote professionals drawn to both lifestyle and proximity -- roughly two hours from New York City, yet deeply connected to the Catskills landscape. Properties that combine immediate income, parking, acreage, and multifamily density in this location trade infrequently for a reason.
