Welcome to 30 Old Post Road South, a newly built, light-bathed modern farmhouse on a full acre between the villages of Rhinebeck and Red Hook. The open-plan great room featuring a chef's kitchen anchors the house. The great room's cathedral ceiling rises to an exposed timber beam, and a stacked-stone chimney runs from floor to peak. Walls of glass flank the fireplace (wired for gas), their gabled transom windows framing the treetops and filling the room with light all day. French doors adjacent to the wet bar lead to the stone palleted patio wrapping the northeast corner of the living room. The wonderfully neutral kitchen palette features seamless quartz countertops and top of the line appliances by GE Profile and LG, including a cooktop induction range and a built-in wall oven and microwave. Quarter-sawn wide-plank white oak floors reflect the seamlessly organic sensibility throughout the three-bedroom, three-bathroom home. The generously proportioned primary suite occupies the second level, featuring a well-appointed windowed bathroom with a wet area encompassing a luxurious soaking tub and shower. The beautifully designed primary bedroom is flanked by its enormous walk-in closet large enough for year-round wardrobes. The second and third bedrooms share the third level, each with generous closet space. A bonus room large enough for an office or additional storage completes this floor. The separate one car garage, original but completely rebuilt, adds options for car storage or an artist's studio. Five minutes from the best restaurants, shops and farm stands of Rhinebeck and Red Hook, 30 Old Post Road South's premium location balances privacy and convenience. The Rhinecliff train station, with service to Manhattan, is less than a ten minute drive away.
